

The UK has a slightly higher proportion of its population in relative low income than the European Union average

Proportion of the population in households with an income less than 60% of the national median

Source: Eurostat; the data is for 2009 and is before deducting housing costs; updated Dec 2010