

The proportion of people in low-income households is lower than a decade ago in all the regions except for the West Midlands. London now has a much higher proportion than any other region.

Source: Households Below Average Income, DWP; Great Britain; updated Aug 2010