

Rural households are much more likely to be in fuel poverty than urban households, both overall and among those in low income

For each combination of area type and household income, proportion of households who are in fuel poverty

Source: English Housing Survey, DCLG; the data is the average for the three years to 2009; England; updated Jul 2011