

Throughout the last decade, the rate of deaths amongst those aged 55 to 64 in Scotland has been at least a quarter higher than in England and Wales for both men and women

Source: General Register Office for Scotland and ONS mortality data; updated Jan 2011