

Wales has more people in receipt of out-of-work benefits than most of the rest of Great Britain. This is mainly because it has a high number of people who are both sick or disabled and out-of-work.

Source: Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, DWP and ONS population estimates; the data is for February 2010; updated Dec 2010