

Throughout the last decade, the number of premature deaths in Scotland has been much higher than in England and Wales

