

Although the great majority of working-age households everywhere in Northern Ireland use a car to get to work, the proportion without a car is far higher in Belfast and Derry than elsewhere

